

broken-wing act

it's a control freak of nature:

a neurotic prey animal,
made to be eaten

A photograph taken at night showing a deer standing in the middle of a road. The scene is illuminated by the bright, circular beams of headlights from a vehicle, creating a strong contrast with the dark surroundings. The deer is positioned centrally, facing the viewer. The road surface is visible, and the background is mostly obscured by the darkness and the glow of the lights.

killdeer in headlights

forced to confront itself in place

it is not watched,
but it remains
to be seen.

it is waiting
to be seen.

to fake a break and grovel

as if it hasn't played this act before.

call its bluff.

its wing is broken, but it behaves the same regardless

the season ended
years ago

and the threat has long since passed.